

BOARDING SCHOOLS

If you have questions about boarding schools, here are two well-respected organizations that can give you accurate, current and helpful advice:

1) Council for the Registration of Schools Teaching Dyslexic Pupils:

Our aim is to help parents and also those who advise them choose an educational establishment for children with Specific Learning Difficulties (SpLD).

Parents personal experience: “Although her website lists numerous schools in the UK, there are many more not listed on her website that she is also very familiar with, especially schools that are especially set up for children with special needs. Sue provided us with short-list of 4 potential schools with the criteria we were looking for (i.e. geographic area, size, boarding, curriculum offered, ages, special needs support offered, etc.) and we narrowed it down to two. She helped organise appointments for us to visit those two schools and, from there, we organised a two-day trial for our first preference. Sue was tremendously helpful and I have no hesitation in recommending her for her thoroughness, professionalism and her quick handling of our case”.
